

CHRISTOPHER W. BECKNER, D.D.S.
ARCHIE W. BECKNER, D.D.S.

PRACTICE LIMITED TO PERIODONTICS

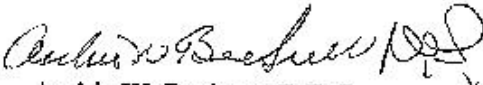

February 11, 2002

Dear Colleagues:

When I was first introduced to Cuprident, I thought, here we go again, another toothpaste that claims to be of benefit in controlling periodontal disease and mouth odor. However, I selected a few patients in which we were having difficulty in managing their problems and supplied them with the product.

After a few months virtually all of these patients exhibited a marked reduction in gingival inflammation and bleeding. Several patients noted that their mouths felt cleaner - longer and asked where they could get some more Cuprident.

Needless to say, this early experience with Cuprident convinced me of its efficacy and patient acceptance. These same results have been seen repeatedly over the years and I heartily endorse Cuprident as an adjunct in the control of periodontal disease.

Archie W. Beckner, D.D.S.